

Sustainable Procurement Policy

March 2025

Introduction

This policy commits us to reducing the adverse effects of our business activities in Interroll's supply chain. With Sustainable Procurement, we contribute to improving the performance of our supply chain in terms of business ethics, environmental and social concerns, labour and human rights, and the upstream procurement practices of our suppliers. We request from our suppliers to apply the international standards on working conditions and responsible business practices endorsed and recognized by Interroll.

Interroll also practices corporate responsibility in the supply chain locally. With our procurement strategy, we promote local communities by increasingly purchasing from suppliers in the same country. In this way, we actively strengthen societal success in the areas surrounding our sites. In addition, we shorten supply routes with a positive ecological contribution by traffic reduction.

We hereby define a procurement policy that covers our entire supply chain. In doing so, we are creating a basis for the increasing transparency expectations of our stakeholders and legislators. Our aim is to systematically record the environmental and social impact risks in the supply chain and reduce them with suitable measures.

Interroll has a zero-tolerance policy of human rights violations. This is incorporated in our Supplier Code of Conduct (SCoC), which is one of our contractual framework conditions in procurement.

Governance

The Board of Directors and Group Management are responsible for ensuring that our Sustainable Procurement requirements are considered and implemented in the company's overall strategy. They ensure that the responsibilities for risk identification, setting objectives and targets, provision of resources, implementation and reviews are clearly defined.

The Group Management must regularly inform the Board of Directors on the topic of Sustainable Procurement and its risk assessment. This ensures that the Board of Directors possesses the requisite knowledge to evaluate these aspects.

Within Interroll's organizational structure, the Chief Operations Officer has overall responsibility for Sustainable Procurement.

The Chief Financial Officer is responsible for assessing and reporting on procurement-related risks as part of the annual ESG risk inventory. The resulting reporting in accordance with Article 964b Swiss Code of Obligations is submitted by the Board of Directors to the Annual General Meeting for approval.

Operational implementation and service provision are delegated to the Vice President Strategic Purchasing and the local management of the legal entities.

Compliance with this policy and local legal obligations regarding Sustainable Procurement is annually reviewed by the Group Management through Corporate Compliance.
